EXTRADITION.

Proceedings Against an Alleged Forger.

On the Australia extradition papers signed by President Harrison and addressed to U. S. Minister Merrill arrived for Richard E. Taylor alias Frank B. Chandon, who is wanted in San Francisco on a charge of forgery, an indictment having been found against him by the grand jury. The young man came down here a short time ago and was followed by James H. Langtry, special agent for Wells, Fargo & Co., who has been shadowing him.

It appears that Taylor with two other men under arrest are charged with forging a check, which reads as follows:

"Clearing House No. 21.

"San Francisco, Cal., May 16, 1889.

"The Crocker-Woolworth National Bank of San Francisco No. 1. Pay to Mr. Charles Gault or order $4,800, four thousand eight hundred dollars.

"Mrs. Margaret E. Crocker."

On the back of the check was written, "Pay to the order of Frank B. Chandon, Charles Gault."

Taylor went to the office of Wells, Fargo & Co. at San Jose and instructed them to send the check to San Francisco and collect it. This they did, giving him the amount less $5 for expenses.

On Saturday Mr. Langtry presented his papers at Court and Mr. Justice McCully issued a bench warrant for the arrest of Richard E. Taylor. He was arrested at Joe Silva's place behind the Chinese theatre by Marshal Soper and Capt. Larsen and taken to the Station House.

The matter came up in the Supreme Court this morning before Mr. Justice McCully. Hon. Paul Neumann appeared for Mr. Langtry and stated that Richard E. Taylor was in Court.

His Honor asked the young man if he was Taylor.

He replied that that was the supposition in Honolulu. He claimed he was not Richard E. Taylor. His name was J. D. Gould and he desired to have the case continued so that he could obtain counsel.

His Honor continued the case to 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, and told Taylor he would have to remain in the custody of the Marshal until then.

PRESENTATION.

At 11 o'clock this morning His Excellency Geo. W. Merrill, United States Minister Resident, presented Mr. H. W. Severance, U. S. Consul-General, Mrs. and Miss Severance to His Majesty the King at Iolani Palace. Mr. Severance was very pleasantly received by the King and they chatted together for some time. There were also present, Her Majesty the Queen, H. H. Prince Kawananakoa, H. H. Prince Kalaniana'ole, Mrs. G. W. Merrill, wife of the U. S. Minister Resident, and Mr. J. W. Robertson, Acting Chamberlain, and Mrs. Robertson.

HEREAFTER a very palatable lunch will be served at the Hawaiian Hotel bar every day between 12 and 1 o'clock. There will be soup, two hot dishes, salads, etc. A number of private tables will be found where gentlemen can sit down and partake of lunch and all for twenty-five cents. This opportunity to get a good lunch will no doubt be largely availed of.

ON Saturday evening Mr. August Ahrens, manager of Waianae plantation, stood close to a fence patting a stallion on the back, when the animal kicked and broke the fence, part of which fell on Mr. Ahrens' leg and broke it. The Kaala was sent that evening to Waianae, returning with Mr. Ahrens on Sunday. He is at the Queen's Hospital doing well.

REAR-ADMIRAL Henry Fairfax, C. B. R. N., commander-in-chief of the Australian naval station, has been appointed second Lord of the Admiralty, and will leave for England in about a month's time. The successor to Admiral Fairfax has not yet been appointed so far as is known. Admiral Fairfax, who has been on the Australian station for nearly two years, succeeded Rear-Admiral Tryon.

MA. L. J. Levey has received advice by the Zealandia that the Katie Putnam Company will arrive in Honolulu by the Mariposa about Oct. 20 and play a season of four or five nights. The letter was written at their ninth week in Australia, when, it said, Katie Putnam had "made more money than she ever did in the same length of time in America." She has long testimonials from the London, New York and Australian press.

On Saturday by a vote of a large majority of all the electors concerned this area was increased by 131 square miles, making a total of 174. Philadelphia, the next largest city of the Union, has 129 square miles, while San Francisco has only twenty-eight! —Ex.

A POLITICAL DISCOURSE.

The Pastor of Central Union Church on "The Providential Meaning of the Late Insurrection."

The subject of Rev. Dr. Beckwith's discourse Sunday evening in Central Union Church was, "The Providential Meaning of the Late Insurrection." His text was the 10th verse of the 67th Psalm, "Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee," etc. The wrath here meant is that against the right, and a plot of that nature was the occasion of this Psalm. It was the invasion of Jerusalem by Sennacherib. The good King Hezekiah had come to the throne after the death of the infamous Ahab, only to find the nation sadly demoralized—revenues wasted, idolatry prevailing, wizards practising their nefarious trade. Hezekiah set about reforming all these abuses. He abolished idolatry, tore down the high places, replenished the revenues and put them to proper uses. Lastly, he refused to pay any more tribute to Assyria. And that is what vexed Sennacherib, who poured his troops into Jerusalem and put Hezekiah under a million and a half of tribute. It was to correct the people that God had thus far let the wrath of Sennacherib go, but now he laid his hands on him. That night the angel of the Lord smote a hundred four score and five thousand of his hosts. The wrath had been allowed to go on almost to the nation's extremity. Many towns were ravaged, the country stripped of its harvests. How could any good come out of that, or how could the wrath of man be restrained? But it was. In one night Sennacherib was stripped of his army and his power. It is wonderful how soon prosperity follows good government. And marvellous prosperity did come. Riches and honor and the fear of the Lord came to the nation out of its distress.

The preacher went on to demonstrate the "sublime doctrine" of good out of evil, illustrating it by "Israel in Egypt, groaning under the taskmasters, but it made a nation of them," also by the case of the American Pilgrim Fathers, and the four years' civil war to perpetuate slavery but which ended it. So the perils which this little island kingdom had sometimes gone through. At one time her Government dragged at the mouth of the cannon, at another time her flag discolored, at another time her independence threatened. But every time she came out with her liberty enlarged greater than ever. And now in a milder way than the wrath of Sennacherib yet alarming enough, God has let distress come upon us. Our usually peaceful streets have heard just a little of the sound of battle; our citizens have had a dread of massacre; our homes a night of watching for fear of the flaming torch. All for a handful of perjured men whose wrath was excited just for the same reason that Sennacherib's wrath was raised. Their wasting of the revenues was stopped; they wanted the old order of things. They did not wait to think of the old disgraces, of idolatry and corruption and bribery. They just wanted spoils. It was not a revolution—it was insurrection, a cruel and causeless revolt against good Government. There is a right of revolution, but it must be for great cause; it must be against gross corruption; it must be against entrenched wrongs. It does not take the sword first and plead for redress afterward. It does not without a moment's warning go with arms through the unguarded streets, to seize the Palace and demand the surrender of the household troops. That is not revolution, that is insurrection. That is what God has allowed to come upon us.

What good is to come of it? God knows: he rules: he must have some use for it. We cannot see all of it, but we can see some of it. We can look over the palace walls now—"a cat may look at a king" now. [Sensation.] The people can look into their own domain without being dragged to the Police Station for it. We are rid of a nuisance and a menace to our peace that without this trouble might have taken a generation to do. Our palace is no longer an arsenal: the artillery is all taken away. That menace is gone. We have a reorganized police force giving us more confidence in lying down at night—that is another benefit from that day's trouble. And better than that is the improvement of political and social relations. One thing is settled forever, the question of the royal prerogative. We know now who rules in Hawaii. We have liberty now. No more irresponsible power in Hawaii. No more. So priceless a boon and at so small a cost! Other nations have gone through years and years of blood and strife to obtain that freedom. We have not only learned who rules, but we have learned the temper and texture of our rulers. A little trouble is necessary to try men. Our Government has been tried and it has proved capable for the emergency. It has proved strong in itself and in the eyes of the world. Because the Government has proved its capacity it will be recognized as a stable one and its bonds will be at a premium in London by reason of this trouble. Some other things we have learned from this sharp discipline. We have learned what quick and effective defense we have in this little kingdom, for our business and our homes, in our citizen soldiery. If you have ever thought that all the little parades and target practice was only innocent pastime you will think so no more. The militia spring to the city's defense like veterans in real peril. The speaker was surprised to see those boys stand so firmly in the midst of hissing rifle bullets and hurrying cannon shot. Not all in the ranks but some from our homes came out to save us from we know not what horrors of unbridled anarchy.

Another thing we require to learn is the need of an active personal interest in public affairs. There is no good Government anywhere on the face of the earth that has not its bitter enemies, and if its friends sleep they will not sleep. Our day of terror teaches us the need of eternal vigilance. There is danger of losing sight of our public interests in our business absorption. Our hearts must be in the government and our shoulders under it.

There is a benediction to the Hawaiian people from this trouble. They may learn from it something of liberty as opposed to license, and of law as against violence. Let us hope that their talk may be drawn more and more toward justice and equity and righteousness. This outbreak is God's voice to you and me, summoning us to our duty to this neglected people. For that is what they are. We have lifted them up a little way and then left them to grope their own way, and the marvel is that they have not groped more blindly than they have. It is our only safety—the regeneration of Hawaii. Under God it is our safety as well as theirs. That day of peril is God's summons to us to place ourselves in the closest sympathy with this people to consecrate ourselves to their prosperity, to devote our wealth to their elevation. Let us listen to this summons and by a new life, with perpetual peace within our borders, we will learn that the wrath of man praises God.

A congregation moderately large listened attentively to the sermon. The choir temporarily reduced to five members led the singing and gave special anthems very acceptable during the services.

New York Goes Equitable by a Large Majority.

No better example of the estimation in which this great Company is held, can be given, than by a comparative statement of the business done by itself and its chief competitors in their common home, the city of New York. In New York a man can get his information direct from the Home Office of the largest companies, and has more accurate opportunities of judging their respective merits than anywhere else. As a result in the City of New York during the year 1888 the Equitable wrote a larger amount of new business than was written by its Two Largest Competitors Combined. In the State of New York the Equitable wrote $1,808,431 more insurance than the aggregate of its Two Largest Competitors Taken Together. It did the Largest Business in the United States, as well as in the World at a time when all Companies were straining every nerve to pass it.

The reason why this universal verdict goes with the Equitable is on account of the Popularity of its Plans and the Promptness and Fairness of its Business Methods. As the Pioneer in reforms its Policies have been and are being extensively imitated by others, a most graceful tribute to their merit.

The primary object of Life Insurance is to provide ready money against death. No Company can approach the Equitable for promptness in this regard. The New Policy of the Equitable just out is (like a bank draft) a simple promise to pay and is without conditions on its back.
